Colonel Sullivan made his farewell speech to us vesterday; he said he was prouder to have the reputation of being the leader of the 13th regiment than to be the leader of the republic; he said he owed his promotion to the travery of the regiment, and if any of the 13th ever caure to him he would give half what he had and the other half for the asking. I tell you sir, his like will never again command the 13th Indiana. I do not say this in disparaging Colonel Foster. He is as brave a Colonel as draws a sword, as his coolness at the battle of Winchester testifies. The regiment has full confidence in him; but Colonel Sullivan watched over our interests as a fa her watches over his children. Although the boys were sorry to see him go, they gave three cheers that might be heard for miles along the valley.

PATENT AERIFIED GAS APPARATUS.

THE public can now be supplied with my patented ap paratus for Cooking and Heating by Gas and Air. which are now coming into very general use, and to which I beg leave to call the at ention of housekeepers and gas companies. Many attempts have been made to use gas in cookery and for heating apartments, but most of them have failed to meet the expectations of inventors and consumers. In the apparatus furnished by me, the requisites of Economy, Comfort, Neatness, Convenience, Uniformity of Result, and Improvement in the Quality of the Food, have been attained. From the peculiar man of combustion, all possibility of creating smoke or noxious and unwholesome vapor is prevented. The meats retain all their juices, and acquire a rich and delicate flavor, which no other process can impart. Much time and labor are saved in attendance, making of fires, &c., while the perfection and uniformity of the result are of great importance. The process of roasting bread and pastry is a great improvement over the usual method of baking in

TESTINIONIALS:

From a very large number of testimonlals we present | mess.

[From Dr. C. F. Hoffendahl, M. D.] Mr. W. F. Shaw-Dear Sir: Having used your Gas Stoves in my house for a number of years, I can cheerfully testify to their utility both for cooking and heating. C. F. HOFFENDAHL, M. D., No. 20 Somerset street, Boston.

From Rev. Dr. Gillette, N. Y. This ce tifles that, having used the tias Stove of Mr. W. F. Shaw's make, I have found it equal to its designs. It has warmed our sleeping chamber during the past winter at no greater cost than ordinary means of heating, and saved a great deal of trouble, work, and dust conseor wood fires. A. D. GILLETTE, D. D.

[From Messrs, Leeds & Co., N. Y.] I take pleasure in certifying to the merits of your Gas Stoves, having had one in use in my dining room all the winter past, said room being an extension room and very celd. One register, from a large furnace, was found insufficient. Upon putting in one of your four-light Gas Stoves, I found that I could heat the room the coldest day in twenty minutes, at a very trifling cost of gas, giving a very agreeable and moist heat.

From Joseph T. Brown, Esq., Apothecary and Chemist. Mr. Wm. F Shaw-Dear Sir: For the past five years having had much experience in the use of your Gas Heating Apparatus in my Laboratory, I consider it the most convenient and economical arrangement I have ever used. I consider this apparatus as almost indispensable for the Laboratory. Respectfully yours, Jos. T. Brown, 229 Washington street, Boston.

[From the Boston Post.] Toyon BEEFSTEAK MADE TENDER BY BROHANG.—An apparatus for brolling beefsteak by heat produced from burning illuminating gas in mixture with atmospheric air has lately been invented by Mr. W. F. Shaw, of Boston, who has produced many sterling inventions for applying gas and air heat to chemical, culinary, manufacturing, and domestic purposes. The last invention is really a most useful and scientific novelty, inasmuch as the toughest beefsteak, when broiled in this apparatus, is equally as tender as sirioin steak broiled over a coal fire. The principal product of combustion from the burning mixture is pure vapor of water at a very high temperature, by which the albumen of the muscular fiber which is on the surface of the steak is immediately coagulated and firm set, so that the juices of the meat are all retained, and it a few moments are converted into heated vapors, which, being thus confined, break and rend the fibers of the meat, and loosen their texture through the mass. The apparatus is perfectly simple and easily understood, and is used by merely slipping the end of a flexible hose over

It can also be used for other purposes-such as broiling, frying, or heating smoothing-irons. The irons intended to be used with it are cast hollow, with ascending and descending flues inside. When the irons are to be heated, you have merely to remove the broiler, and place the irons over holes which lead the heat to their interior. The expense of heating irons is but one cent per hour, and an iron can be heated in five minutes' time. For economy, convenience, cleanliness, and general utility, it is the most perfect and desirable article for the purpose for which it is intended yet offered to the public. One great advantage it possesses over other gas heating apparatus is its entire freedom from smoke or odor of any kind, which is attributed to surrounding the flame with finely perforated metal, the application of which to this purpose has been patented by W. F. Shaw in America, England,

[From Joseph M. Wightman, Boston.] Mr. Wm. F. Show-Dear Sir: Among the many useful contrivarces for culinary purposes which you have made, I think that for broiling by gas to be one of the most de-sirable. The fire is ready at any moment, and a steak is cooked with less trouble and far better than by any other larly over an anthracite fire, the beat is dry, and the little capsules which retain the natural juices of the meat are shriveled and parched, so as to render the steak dry and In the usual process of broiling over coals, and particushriveled and parched, so as to render the steak dry and tough; while in your patent Gas Broiler the combustion of gas produces water (this may be seen by holding a cold plate or piece of metal over the chimney of an argane burner, on which the water will be condensed), which by the heat is converted into steam intensely heated. The steak is consequently surrounded by a moist heat which prevents the outside from becoming crisp and hard while the interior portion of the steak is being cooked. The effect of this is, that a steak which would be tough if cooked over an open fire is rendered tender and juicy by ng cooked in your "Gas Broiler." The result of a trial of more than six conths in my own family has rendered it such a favorite that the "gridiron" has been entirely superseded; and, however bright and tempting the fire in the range may be, your little portable broiler is universally used. Yours truly,

JOSEPH M. WIGHTMAN. [From James A. Dix, Esq., Boston.] One of your Steak Broilers has been in my family for several months, and it has given the most complete satisfaction. Steak cooked in it uniformly comes upon the table tender and juicy The broiler has entirely superseded

TOW. F Shaw, Esq. From Messrs. Bullock & Crenshaw, Philadelphia. Mr. W. F. Shaw-Dear Sir: We have used your gas burning apparatus for heating purposes during the past year, and are well pleased with the utility and superiority over the old method of burning gas for heating. In the laboratory, we consider them indispensable to economy and convenience. Your arrangement for placing several burners under the same vessel-thus greatly increasing the temperature and distributing it more generally-has dered the use of charcoal furnaces to city pharmaceutists almost unnecessary. One of the great recommendations we find in your burning arrangement consists in the general absence of secondary products, which, in a close room, affect the comfort and health of the operator. tist who has the luxury of gas at his control

Shaw's Patent Steak Broiler for broiling by gas beefsteaks, chops, &c., and were much pleased with our trial of it. Beefsteaks were cooked in five minutes, and one of the most desirable features about it was that the beef retained its flavor, and was juicy and tender. And we can cheerfully recommend it to all as being a cheap and convenient manner of cooking. GAGE, BRO. & DRAKE. Yours truly,

From D. R. Cooke, 111 Lake street, Chicago. Messrs. Walworth, Hubbard & Co.-Gentlemen: I regard W. F. Shaw's Patent Gas Smoothing Iron as one of the greatest inventions of the age. It is all you claim for it-novel, economical, and exceedingly convenient. The much-dreaded "ironing day" is welcomed with pleasure wherever the Gas Iron is used: and no housekeeper will consent to be without it after giving it a trial.

[From Mrs. W. W. Everts, Chicago.] Mr. Hubbard-Sir: It is nith pleasure that I give my testimony to the great value of the Gas Stove you are now offering to the public. The stove for ironing I regard as a lesideratum long needed in housekeeping. The fatigue and exhaustion occasioned by many hours spent at the roning-table, in a room heated to the ordinary temperature, is all spared by using your stove, which heats the rons quickly, and leaves a comfortable room. This stove is equally successful as a broiler. Much more might be said in simple justice to this great invention, were it nec-MRS. W. W. EVERTS. essary. Respectfully,

PARKERSBURG, Va., May 10, 1862. We are all in a great state of excitement here. The town of Burning Spring, in West county, taking the city of Norfolk, and for other gallant was burned vesterday afternoon by the Morcassiers Rangers; also Palestine. Everything at the former place was destroyed. This town is full of fugives. It is not known who have been killed, though many are missing. Charley Shattuck was shot at twice across the river. The last seen of the Morcassiers by fugitives here they were taking the goods out of the boats in the river. It is not known what has become of regiments, the command of which is to be given the small military force in that region. The number of Morcassiers is not known, though many fix it at 600. Where the devil did they come from? The town of Elizabeth is deserted and by this time probably burned. Some consider this place in imminent danger. They have ging of entrenchments and fortifications. but one company of soldiers here. The citizens would turn out to a considerable extent if they last five weeks and the rolls exhibit nearly 1,600

The fugitive slave law is being quietly enforced in the District to-day, the military authorities not interfering with the judicial process. There are at least four hundred cases pending. It is said some of the negroes whose owners or agents from Maryland are here seeking their recovery mysteriously disappeared this morning.
